A B O U T M E

Sometimes life gets crazy busy, and we're stuck in survival mode. We retreat into old habits, easy answers, and predictable outcomes. Coaching helps clear the clutter, quiet the chatter, and invite a new perspective. In a noisy world, clarity and confidence are pure gold.

"Without a map every road looks promising... With a map, the right road becomes obvious." L. Remillet

After 23 years in pastoral leadership, I know the value of having a plan, a practical strategy and purpose worth living for. I also learned the values of talking it out as a key to build confidence and commitment. I've been in the business world, and I've been in the church world and I know the unique challenges of both.

Is Coaching the Next Step for you?

- Confidential conversations invite clarity, fresh perspective, and renewed confidence for next steps.
- Coaching helps reveal mental blocks, blind spots, and beliefs that may be limiting the creative process.
- Coaching creates an environment for exploring patterns in everyday problems.
- Coaching creates space for personal reflection, new and creative insight, and a high-level view of spiritual, emotional, and relational connections.

Ultimately, coaching is a personal investment in oneself that can lead to significant personal and professional development, relational health, and spiritual vitality.
